

These regulations apply to the delivery of products to California (USA) as well as to their use and processing there.

According to the current status, the regulations set out in this set of rules are relevant for consumer goods that come or may come into direct contact with people as end consumers.

According to this set of regulations, consumers there have a right to information as to which of the listed harmful substances are contained in the product. These are to be marked on a warning sticker on the product. Likewise, in unclear cases, a warning sticker must be affixed.

The products supplied to you are packaging materials for industrial applications. To the best of our knowledge, they are not intended to be marketed as consumer goods in the California market. If you have purchased items from us for which this is intended by you, please notify us to coordinate further action.

Details on the chemical substances listed in California Proposition 65 cannot be rendered by us, as we process supplied raw material and our organization is not specialized in handling the chemical and potentially toxic chemicals in question. We do not verify the absence of these substances through analysis as part of our quality assurance process and thus cannot rule out the possibility that traces of these substances are present, as contamination or otherwise.

The above information is not legal advice. Please consult a lawyer or law firm knowledgeable about California Proposition 65 if you have any questions.
