

We do not produce the raw material for our plastic injection molded articles ourselves, but obtain this from upstream suppliers.

The raw material used and the intended use are not a typical area for the use of nanomaterials. We have asked the upstream suppliers in this regard. We currently have no information as to whether nanomaterials are contained in the materials supplied.

Nor can we rule out the presence of these substances in the material with certainty, because we do not carry out material analyses of this kind as part of our quality assurance.
